Report of Operative R P Terrell.

New Brunswick, N.J.
Sept. 28th, 1926

Interview with: JAMES V. ADEL, (also named James V. Cassino) at present city salesman for Armour & Co.

At 4 P.M. operative went to the New Brunswick office of Armour & Co. on Handy Street and there saw and interviewed James V. Adel. He told operative that he remembers that the Gibson woman bought some hog serum, and that they had difficulty collecting the bill. He does not know whether the bill was finally paid or not, but that Mr. Dowd, the head cashier would know this.

Operative asked him if he had ever been to Mrs. Gibson's to collect the bill. He replied that he was sent down by Mr. Dowd once to see Mrs. Gibson about the bill, but when he got there, nobody was home, and that all he saw was two shacks. He stated that this was the only time he had ever been to the Gibson house.

Operative asked him whether his call was before or after Sept. 14th, 1922. Adel said he could not recall when it was, before or after the above date. Operative tried to get Adel to fix the time of his visit, but could not do so.
